Volume 1, Number 2

February, 2008

The following is a report on a presentation by the Muslim Peacemaker Teams to the Christian Peacemaker Teams, in Suleimaniya, Kurdish Iraq. Read it and weep.

THE GIFT THAT KEEPS ON GIVING

MPT Report on Depleted Uranium

Epidemic

By Cliff Kindy, Christian Peacemaker Team in Iraq.

Dr. Najim Askouri and Dr. Assad Al-Janabi, members of Muslim Peacemaker Teams (MPT) in Najaf, presented their report on depleted uranium in Suleimaniya on December 10th and 11th, 2007. Dr. Assad is head of pathology at the public hospital in Najaf. Dr. Najim is a nuclear physicist. They were an MPT team documenting the health impact on Najaf of depleted uranium weapons used during the Gulf wars. The study faced limits of personnel, resources and equipment. It relied on accumulated public data and a major contribution of time and energy. The focus was Najaf, a city of over one million people, and the rural areas in that governate. The area is about 180 miles from where depleted uranium was used in the First Gulf War.

In 2004 there were 251 reported cases of cancer, in spite of a collapsed health care infrastructure. By 2006, with more complete data, that figure rose to 688. By 2007, 801 cancer cases had been reported. Those figures portray an incidence rate of 28.21 cases of cancer per 100,000 people by 2006. The normal rate is 8 to 12 cases per 100,000 people.

Two observations are striking: One, cases of cancers related to radiation exposure have increased dramatically, especially rare soft tissue sarcoma and leukemia. Two, the age at which cancer is first diagnosed is dropping rapidly, with incidents of breast cancer at 16, colon cancer at 8, and liposarcoma at 1.5 years. Dr. Assad noted that 24% of cancer patients fell into the 11-30 age range.

The researchers gave special attention to three locations in Najaf. Al-Anzar Square is a street 50 meters long. Here there were 13 reported cancer cases among unrelated individuals of different ages and genders, with no family history of cancer. Al-Fathi, is a one-kilometer rural stretch along a river, where 37 varied cancer cases were reported. In Hay Al-Muslameen, a well-to-do sector of the city, twenty cases were documented.

Dr. Najim began his report by noting the U.S. military used 350 tons of depleted uranium in 1991 and 150 tons during the 2003 bombing of Baghdad. When depleted uranium hits a target it aerosolizes and oxidizes forming two compounds. The first is water soluble and enters the aquifers and food chain. The second is insoluble and settles as dust that is carried on the winds.

Aerosolized dust enters the lungs and causes problems as it crosses cell walls and impacts the genetic system. Dr. Najim said, "Cancer is spreading from the conflict area as a health epidemic and will only get worse." The cancer rate has more than tripled in 16 years in Najaf, with similar increases in Basra, Kuwait and Saudi Arabia. Using a Geiger counter, the team discovered radiation levels of 30-40 counts per minute in the Najaf area, compared to 10-15 counts per minute at the Tawaiha nuclear research reactor site outside Baghdad. Dr. Najim shared that his grandson was born with heart problems, Downs [sic] Syndrome, an underdeveloped liver, and leukemia. He assumes the parents' exposure to depleted uranium caused these conditions.

He concluded his talk by asking, "Would it be just to ask for equipment and facilities to document the problems, clean the environment, and care for those exposed to depleted uranium?" The forum provided a model that others can duplicate in their own communities to highlight the serious problem as depleted uranium blows into neighborhoods across Iraq.

I ask you, are the perpetrators of this crime against humanity, not to mention international law, brain dead? Or are they simply without a conscience, immoral idiots, and totally lacking in any moral and ethical sensibilities? I cry for the people of Iraq. -- Jim Foster

News and Notes from PIET

Peace Coalition of East Tennessee Launched

The Peace Coalition of East Tennessee had its second meeting on January 5th with 10 peace groups represented. In addition to formally adopting our name, the group discussed possibilities for cooperative action, including participation in the Martin Luther King Parade on Monday, January 21st, and providing a peace group presence at other events, such as Earth Fest this spring and The Rossini Festival. For the parade, it was agreed we would walk as a "group of groups" behind a banner bearing the name of the coalition, but with each group carrying its own banner in addition. In effect, this will be the first announcement to the general public of the Coalition's existence. Participation in other events will, in most instances, involve setting up tables for each group to distribute literature for its own programs.

We also shared calendar information to the end that we may support each others' programs as we have opportunity. This ICS Peace Memo includes that information.

REPORTS

Introducing SAGE: Institute for Spirituality and Global Economics

SAGE is an Institute focused on the relationships among spirituality, global economics, and peace. It grew out of the Faith, Global Economics, and World Peace study group at Church of the Savior (UCC), in Knoxville, Tennessee. This interdenominational group studied a variety of materials that addressed these relationships. Group members became convinced that moral values need to be part of economic policy. SAGE seeks to share many of these materials and the group's views through the ICS web site. It also seeks to expand these explorations and to develop educational programs.

One of SAGE's ongoing activities is a film series, hosted at Church of the Savior, Weisgarber Rd., Knoxville. Topical films are shown the 3rd Friday of every month, September through May. Discussion follows.

Bob Rundle and Rev. John Lackey direct SAGE. John is a retired UCC pastor, who has written a number of papers on global economics from a faith perspective.

Bob is preparing a major policy statement, titled Thoughts on Reducing World Poverty, under the auspices of SAGE. It is currently undergoing review. The draft of this Statement is available online through the journal, En Christo: A Journal for a New Christianity, vol. I, no. 4.

A monthly collection of comments, quotes, facts and Tamarac Notes written and collated by Roberta Thurstin and Don Timmerman, published in collaboration with PEACEBUILDING INSTITUTE OF EAST TENNESSEE.

On Oct. 31, I was accepted as an Episcopal priest in the Diocese of Eau Claire Wisconsin. I agreed to this because there seemed to be a need of a Eucharistic minister to fill in for the priest at St. Margaret's Church in Park Falls and Our Savior's Church in Lugerville. I had been a Roman Catholic priest, but I chose to marry and was then denied permission to practice my ministry in a Catholic parish. Since I was once canonized as a priest in Lukuledi, Tanzania I wanted to again minister to people as a priest.

At the upcoming Convention of the Diocese, I will be proposing a resolution that the Diocese declare that the invasion and occupation of Iraq is a violation of international law, of Christ's Law of Love, and of international norms of justice. As a result, we are asking that the members cease blessing and encouraging our young to go to Iraq to occupy and further harm the Iraqis. We are also asking the members to use nonviolent means to bring an end to the occupation of Iraq. This could include resisting paying for it, in the spirit of St. Hugh of Lincoln (1140-1200). who refused to pay taxes to King Richard I for his Crusades against the Jewish ghetto and suffered, as a result, the confiscation by the Crown of the property of his diocese. In other words, we are asking our members to wage peace rather than war on the Iraqis. We Christians must stand for peace through nonviolence if we are truly followers of Christ. "Those who live by the sword will die by the sword." - Don Timmerman

"Faith is not about obedience to church dogma, and it is not about submission to established authority. A people's religion is the principle by which they live." - Tolstoy

Roberta and I went to trial on Friday, November 2 in Wausau, Wisconsin for our nonviolent civil disobedience action at Rep. Dave Obey's Office last year, when we went to see him to ask that he stop funding the Iraqi occupation.

On Oct. 2, we participated in a celebration of Gandhi's birthday, which resulted in our being arrested for trespassing with 20 others at the Alliant Tech corporate office in Edina, MN. Alliant Tech makes landmines, cluster bombs, and depleted uranium tipped munitions, parts for the Trident I and Minuteman missiles, and other nasty things. We were issued citations and released. Our question is: "Why are we being arrested? We are nonviolent citizens. Alliant Tech is violating international law in that it is producing indiscriminate weapons that are being used to kill and maim thousands of people, and no one arrests them!"

I want people to know Dorothy Day, the writer, the lover, the mother, the teacher, the friend." On November 8 this year, Dorothy Day would have been 100

She once said, "As you come to know the seriousness of our situation -- the war, the racism, the poverty in the world -- you come to realize it is not going to be changed just by words or demonstrations. It's a question of risking your life. It's a question of living your life in a drastically different way."

1.1 billion people do not have access to drinking water; a child dies every 8 seconds from lack of clean drinking water. Some 850 million lack sufficient food. Over 800 are illiterate, and 11.5 million children do not attend primary school. And 1% of the world's richest people own 40% of its wealth, while 50% of the world's population shares 10%. Some 2 billion people do not have electricity. Only $150 billion is needed to meet the Millennium

Legislators did not vote to override the Bush veto of the S-CHIP bill, which renewed health care for children. There is money for war, but not much for anything else. Some legislators said that children of families making as much as $80,000 a year should not be eligible for the health care. However, the legislators themselves, who make in excess of $100,000 a year, receive free health care not only for their children but their whole families! And they keep it after they leave office! So much for equality and justice for all.

NOTES FROM TAMARACK COTTAGE:

I always feel God's presence when experiencing the beauty of nature. Recently, I have reflected on God's presence seen in the beauty of the people I meet. This past week it was Wally. Wally lives on the fringe of Park Falls society. He has various problems. Wally came into the Christian Mission Thrift Store where Don and I volunteer. He came up to us with a large, red plastic glass. He said the glass would be perfect for a malt he would make for his friend. His eyes teared up when he asked us if we were aware that his friend, Louie, had cancer and was very ill. We did not. Louie is an older man with a long, gray beard and is always dressed for winter. Wally shared that he had taken his friend into his home after a hospitalization. He said Louie's living situation had been very poor. Louie does not have any relatives. Watching and listening to Wally's deep concern for his friend touched me deeply. A man who has very little gladly sharing his meager space and supplies with another. His voice shook, and his eyes reddened when he shared his fear that when he took Louie to the doctor this week, they will tell him how long his friend has to live. Wally will make malts for Louie, which is one food he is able to drink. He will keep him warm. He will share what he has and mourn for his friend. I am humbled. Peace, Roberta
